Members of the Cambridge Camden and Ecclesiological Societies, 1839-1868

Compiled by Geoff Brandwood

Here is a list of members of the Cambridge Camden Society from its beginnings in 1839 and its renamed successor from 1845, the Ecclesiological Society. The last member to join seems to have been in 1867 (Ellacombe) and the Society was dissolved the following year. This record originally appeared in printed form in 2000 as part of Christopher Webster & John Elliott (editors), 'A Church as it should be': the Cambridge Camden Society and its Influence (published by Shaun Tyas). A few minor corrections have been made and a few details added for this online version, the great advantage of which is that the information is now fully searchable, not just by personal names as was the case in 2000, but researchers can now easily seek out, say, particular parishes, colleges, and members who were architects.

For anyone interested in the early history of these influential bodies, the 2000 book also contained a narrative chapter I wrote about the beginnings of the Cambridge Camden Society and its extraordinary rise: "'Fond of Church Architecture": the Establishment of the Society and a Short History of its Membership' (pp. 45-61). The seeds of the organisation were sown by a small group of highly determined High Church undergraduates at Cambridge who, in the wake of the Oxford Movement and a rising passion for Gothic church architecture, sought to return the Church of England to sacramental worship within a suitable architectural setting embedded in pre-Reformation England. 1843 was probably the high point in terms of a very prestigious membership which then included 16 bishops, 31 peers and MPs, 7 deans and diocesan chancellors and 21 archdeacons and rural deans. Also recruited were important figures from France, Germany and the Low Countries who shared the religious ideals and architectural enthusiasms of their English counterparts. The actual number of members at any point in time can never be known for certain but it probably peaked in 1845 at rather more than 850. Unsurprisingly, the societies were clerically dominated but also drew in many laymen who shared a love of church architecture and the Revival of beauty in worship as well as architects and artists. Equally unsurprising is that this was a male-dominated world preserve, yet in the mid-1860s we do find two ladies (Carington and Gibbs) joining.

Here there are 1,243 entries for known ordinary and honorary members plus a number of men who appeared at various meetings but whose membership is unrecorded (and by no means certain). At the end is a list of over 60 sometime patrons – mainly bishops (a few of whom, in less exalted days, had been ordinary members of the Society).

Primary sources (in Roman type in the list)

This is material published by the Societies themselves and includes what was the starting point for this project, the names and dates of election of members contained in the pages of their journal The Ecclesiologist. The first such list details members elected on 8 November 1841. However, by that time the Society was 2½ years old and had been recruiting actively. So, to obtain more detail on the early period, use has been made of the membership lists printed in the CCS Reports for 1840 and 1841. The 1840 Report gives the membership in the middle of that year and it is supplemented with a further list of members elected during the Michaelmas term. Subsequent Reports also contain lists and these have enabled a few names, omitted from The Ecclesiologist, to be added (perhaps the most striking example is that of the architect, S.S. Teulon). The final key primary source was E.J. Boyce's Memorial of the Cambridge Camden Society of 1888 which, apart from reproducing the membership lists for 1842 and 1843, has the only known list of the 118 members as they were in December 1839. Very conveniently Boyce asterisks the 39 members who he claimed 'joined the C.C.S. immediately upon its institution, at the Meeting in May, 1839.' In the period before The Ecclesiologist appeared (and in a few cases afterwards) it is not possible to give an exact joining date for some members so the ranges stated here have been made as close as the evidence allows (shown, for example, for Bayley as 1-5.41 which means January to May 1841).

Secondary sources (in italics)

By far the most important is J.A. Venn's Alumni Cambrienses ... 1752-1900 (AC). Without Venn's achievement the present list could never have been made up in the detail that it has. Oxford men are less well served by Alumni Oxonienses (AO) but this nonetheless provided a good starting point for further research. Where further information was needed on clerical careers this came from various editions of the Clerical Guide, Clergy List, and Crockford. Most of the details on architects' careers has been derived from the RIBA's Biographical Dictionary of British Architects, 1834-1900 (ed. A. Felstead et al., 1993), supplemented from published biographies where they exist and the Compendium of Pevsner's Buildings of England on Compact Disc (1995). No attempt has been made to provide lists of their works. The membership list for the Oxford Architectural Society for 1845 and the lists of Fellows of the Society of Antiquaries for 1840-5 have also been consulted. A little otherwise unknown information has been gleaned from the diaries of Benjamin Webb (BWD) and J.M. Neale. Other published sources have been used, including local directories, reference works on the peerage and gentry, the Dictionary of National Biography, and the Army and Navy Lists. The vast bulk of the information is to be found in fairly accessible sources and, therefore, in the interests of space, references have only been given when the source is obscure or it seems helpful to give it for one reason or another. Many individuals have kindly given advice and pieces of information and they are acknowledged at the end of this list.

The completeness and accuracy of the list

Reconstructing a list like this has its hazards. First, there is the problem of simple errors in the primary sources. Not infrequently The Ecclesiologist, and sometimes the membership lists, got names wrong. Every effort has been made to identify such problems and they are commented upon in the biographical details. Occasionally it has been impossible to identify an individual precisely and this list can do no more than state the facts as best it can (e.g. Lewis, Line). Whether the list is entirely complete is a question that can never be answered with certainty. In the volatile early months of the Society, a few people may have joined and quickly left (as did Halliwell) without leaving a trace. It is just possible (especially in the period 1856-63) that there may be the odd case of someone being omitted from The Ecclesiologist and ceasing membership before the publication of the next membership list through death, resignation or lapsed subscription. In the opinion of the compiler, it is unlikely that the omissions run into double figures.

The CCS/ES generally used the (High Church) abbreviation 'S.' instead of St, and this usage has been followed here.

Counties are noted as they were in early- and mid-Victorian times, thus ignoring later, often extensive boundary changes. County names are abbreviated to three or four letters but it is hoped users will be able to readily interpret them.
